

Describe an Interesting Animal:

You should say-
What is that animal?
Where do you see it?
And explain why you found it interesting?

Introduction:

Bangladesh is diverse in every sense. It has variable cultures, traditions, flora and fauna, and geographical habitats. Due to the availability of several animals, it is not new that some animals have different traits and living ways. All the animals have their unique identities and habits.

What is that animal?

Animals are respected in our country and somehow connected to the supreme power. I will discuss the tiger which is one of the strongest animals in the world or at least as good as others. There are many important and interesting facts about tigers. They are largely found in the country with its capabilities to find their prey and protect their lives. It is considered the most mindful and speedy animal.

Where do you see it?

There are many national parks Bangladesh in with tigers but the highest number of tigers are found in the tidal area of Shundorban. I saw many animals with different paces, qualities, and traits but tigers are the most influential.

Why do you find it interesting?

The unique leadership and powerful acts of them is the magnificent thing to watch. My parents told me various factors about the tigers. They have amazing skills of knowing the disaster before its outbreak. They can run at the highest speed and their concentration is the most significant.

Imaginary something if have time only

As far as I could vividly remember, when I first saw tiger at Bangladesh National Zoo in 2011, I got scared. But I also enjoyed a lot on that particular moment. From that time, I am quite enthusiastic about natural animals. Then I started watching National Geographic channel to know about unknown animals.
