

Describe a useful article on health you read in a magazine or on the internet

what it was?

Where you read it?

why the information was useful?

What did you know about that article?

Introduction:

Well in my life I have read various articles that are related to science, education, fashion and also politics but here I want to talk about an article that is related to health, and I read about it last month when I was reading a magazine

what it was?

I am very fond of reading distinct articles but when I read anything about health at that time my interest in a particular article increases because I am a health-conscious person. I read the article named “Early to bed and early to rise”.

How and why information was useful?

Now the question is why the news was beneficial. In this, the writer explained that one should wake up early in the morning because it makes the person energetic and relaxed, the person can easily concentrate on his work without laziness. It is also very important for maintaining the overall health of the body. If you get early in the morning, you have enough time to do exercise in the mornings and follow your fitness regime.

What did you know about that article?

There's nothing like a great workout to boost your day and feel rejuvenated. Fresh air in the early morning help in increasing the oxygen levels in the brain, reduce blood pressure, lessen migraines, and boost mental health. Moreover, people who wake up early have better brain function, superior critical thinking and problem-solving skills. This means people will tend to perform better at work and the children in their studies. Besides, it also helps to make you look younger and beautiful. From that time, I started to follow these rules in my life and it really helps me to stay healthy and energetic. So, this is the article that I read.

Imaginary something if you have time:

As far as I could vividly remember when I stated waking up early at 6 am it was too much harder for me at first. But gradually I got used to with this. Furthermore, I had bad headache on my first early waking up day. I have taken a oath myself that I will never delay for leaving my bed early in the morning.